Some reminders about instruments:

- Students with a good quality instrument will have the most success. Poor quality instruments cannot be tuned, have poor tone, and will be difficult to play.
- It is strongly recommended that you rent or purchase instruments from stores that specialize in stringed instruments and offer repair. It is worth a little extra money for a dependable instrument. Most rental programs allow you to use your rental equity to the purchase of an instrument later.
- It is a good idea to wait to purchase your child's instrument only when they reach a full-size instrument. It is difficult to recoup your investment in smaller-sized instruments and middle school kids grow quickly!
- Please make sure that the bow has real horse hair, not synthetic or plastic "hair".
- Instruments purchased through online retailers and warehouse-type stores often require extensive repair and adjustment. Most local music stores will not work on this type of instrument or guarantee repairs because the repairs often amount to more than the instrument is worth.
- Please make sure that violins/violas/cellos have four fine tuners!
